Journal of the Plains Anthropological Society
Cumulative Index, 1993

INTRODUCTION

The last cumulative index of the Plains Anthropologist was published in January 1981. This new index was prepared because the old index has been sold out, but also because thirteen new volumes and ten new memoirs have been published since that time. The new index carries the full contents of the journal through Volume 37, No. 141, and the memoir series through No. 26.

The Plains Anthropologist began publication under the title of the Plains Archeological Conference News Letter in 1947. In 1954, the format was changed and enlarged, and the title was changed to the Plains Anthropologist. Eight issues of the journal were published in the next few years in an 8 1/2 by 11 inch format. The first two issues of the journal, published in 1954, are considered as Volume 1; the three issues published in 1955, as Volume 2; the two published in 1956, Volume 3; and the single issue published in 1957, as Volume 4. When the journal was revitalized and issued in a new format (7 x 9 3/4 inches) in 1960, the first issue was designated as Volume 5, No. 9. Since 1960, each publication year comprises a volume, and numbers have been assigned consecutively.

This index, unlike the preceding ones, is not in two parts: an author index and a title index, although they have been maintained. The title index continues to include all articles, notes, book reviews, memoirs and obituaries published in the journal. The author index has been changed in two ways. First, it continues to include articles, notes, and memoirs, but the book reviews have been separated into a book review index listed by reviewer, and the obituaries into an obituary index listed by the decedent's name alphabetically. Second, in the case of multi-authored articles, the full citation is given under the first author's name, with other authors being referenced back to the first author. This is done to contain printing costs, particularly as there are more and more multi-authored articles in the journal. Also, a memoir index has been created. Memoirs are listed separately for the first time: by author in numerical order (Memoir 1, 2, etc.), and by title (alphabetically). This is done as a convenience for the readership, but it too has a cost-saving aspect. Previously any article in an edited memoir had the memoir title and editor's name repeated for each author. Now all articles within a memoir are referenced: "In: Memoir 1, 2, etc." with the full citation given in the memoir index. Further, a Plains Anthropological Society organization and policy index has been created. It has its own author and title index, and includes journal and book review editorial policies, treasurer's reports, secretaries' reports, and other administrative reports and statements. By creating such an index, those who have done the work of the society are readily identified. Finally, for the first time, a subject index—admittedly covering only Volumes 25 to 36—has been attempted. It was assembled by April Siemens-Menzies of Kansas State University. Hopefully at some time in the future the whole of the journal and the old news letters will be subject indexed, which would add greatly to the index's utility to all scholars. As a prelude to that day, the whole of this index will be available, for purchase, on computer disks in WordPerfect 5.1.
